Nikolaj Kunsthal, Copenhagen Contemporary Art Centre,

After the Taliban's total ban on photography, a young generation of Afghan photographers now breathes new life into this medium. The photo exhibition Afghan Tales is a unique collection of photographic works by more than 20 of the best young Afghans photographers, offering a both humorous and serious insight into today's Afghanistan.

This is the first time that a Danish audience is given the opportunity to see Afghanistan through the gaze of local photographers. Drawing on documentarism, press photography and contemporary art, these diverse expressions contribute to a powerful and inspirational look at Afghanistan.

The exhibition provides the opportunity to add nuance to and broaden our knowledge of a country that everybody knows of but few actually know very much about. At the same time, Afghan Tales presents a platform from which to meet upcoming names from the budding Afghan contemporary art scene.

Says Thomas Damgaard, partner of Commerce & Culture, about the exhibition:

“These images shed light on a rich variety of aspects of life as it is being led in Afghanistan. Among these are pictures of the everyday life we rarely get to see in this country. I expect that the exhibition at Nikolaj Kunsthal will raise more questions than it answers. It will challenge the viewer and hopefully leave all of us with a more nuanced conception of Afghanistan”.

Several of the photographers of the exhibition have experienced threats against their lives or abductions and arrests due to the stories that they have pursued – but sometimes also merely for being photographers.

Afghan photographer Barat Ali Batoor, one of the participants of the exhibition, stresses the importance of communicating the untold stories about Afghan society:

“I chose the profession of photography because of the oppression my generation and the generation before me had been a part of – our stories were always untold. I would like to play my role as a storyteller, telling these stories. It is therefore of great importance to me that I am able to tell the stories of my people through photography, and Afghan Tales offers the perfect setting for that”.

Afghan Tales* will be shown at Nikolaj Kunsthal from November 28 2014 to January 18 2015.

Subsequently, parts of the exhibition will be presented at The Danish Museum of Photography in Herning from January 30 to April 18 2015.

ABOUT COMMERCE & CULTURE

Created by the Danish company Commerce & Culture, the exhibition Afghan Tales is the outcome of its longstanding involvement in the development and professionalisation of Afghan photography. Through its extensive local network and knowledge of Afghan photography, Commerce & Culture has established one of the most comprehensive archives of contemporary Afghan photography, on the basis of which the exhibition Afghan Tales has been curated.
