

Léa Nielsen/ Brandts

Hole in Space

Nikolaj Kunsthal’s new family-oriented exhibition is a total installation for all ages between 0-117 years. The exhibition is a space to touch, jump and run in. But watch out – you might get lost in endless sign forests, black holes, soft meteor showers and strange sounds. Hole in Space is created by Danish artist Trine Boesen.

On the 27th of August 2016 Nikolaj Kunsthal opens its doors to an exhibition created for children and adults alike. Hole in Space explores infinity and how notions of it affect us.

Hole in Space presents a wondrous and sensuous world of endless sign forests, secret nooks, crashed satellites, binoculars and kaleidoscopes. Soft meteor showers, weightless globes, strange sounds and black holes make for a space that is easy to get lost in. The exhibition sends body, senses and imagination on a fun and fanciful journey in through the hole and out into space.

Danish artist Trine Boesen has in collaboration with Nikolaj Kunsthal created a parallel reality in which time and space shift and make us lose ourselves. But it also allows us to rediscover who we are, in sensory meetings with objects, materials and phenomena of the universe. The electronic musician Bjørn Svin has composed the futuristic soundtrack of the exhibition.

Hole in Space is an extension of Hole in the Wall, which was exhibited at Brandts earlier this year. New works and dimensions form part of the display, and it is possible to make creative projects inspired by the exhibition in a special workshop.

A dizzying and interactive total installation

*“It’s been a fantastic opportunity to recreate the exhibition Hole in Space at Nikolaj Kunsthal. The exhibition space adds an extra dimension that strengthens the theme of the exhibition. I have extracted elements from my paintings and turned them into physical objects and places. I hope that everybody – children and adults alike – will leave with a sense of having visited another universe,”* says Trine Boesen.

*“With Hole in Space we invite everyone – from 0-117 years – into a dizzying and interactive total installation that challenges our understanding of time and space. Nikolaj Kunsthal maintains a longstanding tradition of creating special exhibitions that are successfully aimed at children, youths and adults, and Hole in Space is the latest addition,”* says Andreas Brøgger, Director of Nikolaj Kunsthal.

Hole in Space can be experienced at Nikolaj Kunsthal from 27 August to 13 November 2016. Tickets are DKK 50 for adults and DKK 25 for children. Hole in Space has been created in collaboration with Brandts.

/More information

Please contact Head of PR and Communication Charlotte König Frost for more information, tel. 28601322, pr@nikolajkunsthal.dk

You are also welcome to contact Andreas Brøgger, tel. 25481311.

Read more about the exhibition: www.nikolajkunsthal.dk

Photos are available from www.nikolajkunsthal.dk/da/presse

Learn more about Trine Boesen here: www.trineboesen.com